

Consultancy services

If you're facing a decision about moving to the cloud, whether that's replacing aging equipment or adding new capacity to your existing infrastructure, then our cloud consultants can guide you through the process.

All too often, cloud providers will be willing to say 'yes' to a customer's requirements before they have even looked under the bonnet of your IT vehicle! When you're moving to the cloud, it's imperative that you really understand what your business needs and that the cloud you choose, can deliver.

At K3, we built our own cloud to help overcome exactly these kinds of problems, and our engineers can help with both the analysis of your requirements and to design and deploy a cloud infrastructure, just right for you.

Analysis

Step one is full discovery. We carry out a full audit of your current environment, platform and services in order to understand how and where they interact and most importantly where they don't but should.

We also look in to the future to understand where you anticipate your IT will need be in 24-36 months' time. Armed with the knowledge gained in the analysis stage, we can provide recommendations on the type of cloud infrastructure that will suit you, be it private, public or hybrid.

Design and deploy (Starcom Cloud and Azure)

If you're happy with the recommended approach, we then start the design process, factoring in all the elements we unearthed in the analysis stage. With signed off designs, we'll develop a deployment project plan that fits your timeframe (including any seasonal issues you may face) in order to get you up and running.

Once you've made the switch to the cloud, we can offer a fully managed support service if you need it or let your IT team get on with it themselves.

Why Starcom Cloud

The Starcom Cloud has been designed and built from the ground up to run critical, line of business applications. Our exceptional performance and resilience is usually the preserve of enterprise level organisations, but with the K3| cloud, enterprise class is for everyone.

For more information on the Starcom Cloud and how we can help make your applications run faster and with less downtime, visit starcom.node4.co.uk/starcomcloud or speak to a Starcom Cloud specialist today on 0844 579 0800.

